How to Decide Which Classes to Take

First, look at your Degree Progress Sheet. You either received a copy from Dr. Lamm Bray in your first advising meeting, or you received it in an email from the Registrar's Office as part of your evaluation of transfer credits. It looks like this (with the name of your degree or certificate on top, of course):

Northwest University Psychology - 2016/2017 Salem Campus

CORE CURRICULUM (60) BIBLE & THEOLOGY (6) <small>Select 6 credits from the following:</small> BIBL 1103 Old Testament Hist Lit (3)		PRE-MAJOR REQUIREMENTS (6) <small>May be applied to Core Curriculum or General Electives</small> Social Sciences PSYC 1013 General Psychology (3)

The blank lines on this sheet are the courses you need to take, so look for those on the Course Schedule.

A few things to consider:

- Look on the back of the schedule to see how you can use each class (required, fills a particular type of requirement such as Humanities or Social Science, and pre-requisite). If there is a pre-requisite listed, make sure you have already taken that course.
- Some classes are offered live in alternate years, and some are offered less frequently. The back of the schedule tells you this. Plan to take the scheduled required courses that are NOT offered every year (if you are eligible), so that you do not have to wait to graduate or take them online.
- The course number reflects the level of the course. It is best to take courses that are your level or one year ahead. (See below to determine which year you are.) Course number guide:
 - 1XXX: First year students
 - 2XXX: Second year students ("sophomores")
 - 3XXX: Third year students ("juniors")
 - 4XXX: Fourth year students ("seniors")
