Informed Consent
Student Form

Northwest University's Buntain School of Nursing signs education affiliation agreements with a variety of hospitals and other health care organizations in order to obtain clinical rotation experiences for you. These agreements typically require that the School of Nursing be willing and able to provide student/faculty names and validate that each student or faculty meets various health, safety, and legal standards prior to participating in clinical learning experiences within the given organizations. For this reason, we need to request your informed consent signature to the following statement in order to assure that the School of Nursing can provide you with appropriate clinical experiences.

Erin-Joy Bjorge, DNP, RN, CNE, COI
Dean of the Buntain School of Nursing
Northwest University

I consent to the Buntain School of Nursing sharing with clinical agencies and clinical placement coordination organizations relevant information from my Northwest University, Buntain School of Nursing file for the purpose of demonstrating that health, safety, and legal standards are satisfied. Records that may be shared include copies of documentation relating to my immunizations; history of infectious diseases; titer levels; background checks; personal identity, including social security number; nursing skills check-off lists; and training on such topics as protection of patient confidentiality, HIV/AIDS, and universal infectious disease precautions.
